Their Troubles.

on Steamer---Powwow Over Contracts---Were Not

When the Cromwell Line steamer contract labor more than half an hour to disappear.

Some time ago representatives of the Honolulu Sugar Planters' Association arranged with a New York agency for large number of laborers. Fully 460 of these men, mostly Italians, were gathered as a result of very attractive advertising, but when they arrived at the New York wharf of the Cromwell steamer nearly all of the number deserted. Those who remained behind were possibly the best of the lot, for those who reached the city yesterday had evidently been collected from the lower quarters and slums of the big cities. They came from Boston, Providence and New York, and many give very strong indications of having been closely associated with the extrement and uncleanest poverty.

Southern Pacific line on hand to see that they were cared for. Manager Fay. Assistant General Passenger Agent F. VALUBLE BEACH PROPERTY S. Decker, City Passenger Agent Abbott and General Agent Morris, of the Pullman company, were among the repto personally direct the departure of these men.

The laborers, with two women in the party, wives of laborers, were quartered on the after deck, and a special gangway was run for the accommodation of these thoroughly unappreciative fronting on the new beach road and the passengers. Two tourist sleepers and fronting on the new beach road and the sea shore, a little on the town side of John Ena's place, the lease of which has 47 years to run from September 1st, 1900.
